finalist for the Rabbi Sacks Book Prize 2023, a new paradigm for relations between religions. One of acceptance and collaboration requires not only a willingness to move beyond a tradition of hostility and competition but also significant theological rethinking within Jewish orthodoxy. There have been very few voices that have advanced and justified a vision of other faiths in this light. To this day, the reigning paradigm is one of practical collaboration while avoiding theologically based engagement or reflection. Two of the most important orthodox Jewish voices advocating change have been those of Irving Yitz Greenberg and Jonathan Sacks. This book presents the theological, moral, and social views of these two leading rabbis. It focuses on the significance of covenant for both and how they adapt this concept to enable the development of a Jewish view of other religions. In considering how they may have influenced each other, it also studies the limitations and internal contradictions that characterize their work as they attempt to point the way forward in a spirit of dialogue to continuing theological reflection on Judaism's approach to world religions.

Barbeau reconstructs the system of religion that Coleridge develops in Confessions of an Inquiring Spirit (1840). Coleridge's late system links four sources of divinity: the Bible, the traditions of the Church, the interior work of the Spirit, and the inspired preacher. To Christ, the Word in thousands of marginalia and private notebook entries, Coleridge challenges traditional views of the formation and inspiration of the Bible, clarifies the role of the Church in biblical interpretation, and elucidates the relationship between the objective and subjective sources of revelation in late writings that develop a robust system of religion. Coleridge conveys his commitment to biblical wisdom.

There is a kind of knowledge that is non-propositional; one variety of it can be acquired in second-person experience of another person, but it can also be transmitted through narratives. This narratively mediated kind of knowledge can be significant for philosophical and theological reflection. Biblical narratives have prompted detailed reflection for so many centuries because they offer profound insights into the nature of the human condition and human flourishing. This book brings together detailed examinations of narratives in the Hebrew Bible and the New Testament to yield one large emergent story which has something to teach that can be missed when the stories are taken in isolation from one another. These are the stories of Job, Samson, Abraham, Mary of Bethany, the temptations of Christ, the passion of Christ, and the story from the book of Ecclesiastes. Taken together, these narratives depict a possible world in which there is a good for suffering human beings that outweighs their suffering and that could not be gotten without the suffering, not even in a world without the fall. On this emergent larger story, human suffering is defeated and peace and joy in human life are possible.

this book seeks to confront the challenge that science presents to the traditional pillars of judaism it identifies and analyzes a wide variety of issues including some contemporary sacred cows first the book considers what is fact and what is fiction in the primary stories contained in judaism s foundational texts then drawing on jewish ethical teachings it seeks to determine how judaism and science can inform each other with respect to a broad range of contemporary issues from abortion and allergies to vaccinations and violence with firearms finally it peeks into the future to address issues that judaism and science are just now beginning to discuss such as an exotheology for aliens on distant planets a jewdroid who seeks acceptance in a shul and even the fate of the universe itself when judaism meets science addresses readers of all persuasions regardless of denomination and whether a believer or not as the author builds a case with specific recommendations for the value of a reality based judaism one grounded on both traditional ethics and empirical evidence that can resonate with the educated adults of israel
